HISTORY

HISTORY OF THE SOCIETY

BY MARCUS BENJAMIN

I have no expectation that any man will read history aright who thinks that what was done in a remote age, by men whose names have resounded far, has any deeper sense than what he is doing to-day.

The report of the Historian of last year closed with the meeting held in commemoration of the memory of Doctor Goode, on February 13, 1897. Treating the history in the same way as was done in that report, the chronicle for this year begins with

February 21, 1897. A church service was held under the auspices of the Joint Societies of the Sons of the Revolution and the Sons of the American Revolution in the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church at 3.30 P. M. Mr. William V. Cox acted as chairman. The exercises included an invocation by the Reverend Doctor Wallace Radcliffe, a reading of the scriptures by Chaplain Childs, an address by the Reverend John R. Paxton, and an address by the Honorable Adlai E. Stevenson, Vice-President of the United States. The Right Reverend Henry Y. Satterlee, Acting Chaplain of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution, was to have pronounced the benediction, but he was unfortunately called away and was unable to do so. The music was by the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church quartette and the United States Marine Band.

February 22. The annual meeting of the Society was held in the hall at 431 Eleventh Street, with President Willcox in the chair. The principal business of the day was the reading of the reports of officers for the past year, followed by the election of the following: President, Edward M. Gallaudet; Vice-Presidents, John W. Bayne, William V. Cox. and Thomas M. Vincent: Recording Secretary, John P. Earnest: Corresponding Secretary, Frank B. Smith; Registrar, William I. Rhees: Assistant Registrar, Ira W. Dennison: Treasurer, Henry P. R. Holt; Historian, Marcus Benjamin; Chaplain, Reverend Doctor Thomas S. Childs. At this meeting a communication was received from Mrs. Josephine Ward Swann, who informed the Society of her purchase of the house at Rocky Hill. New Jersey, where George Washington wrote his immortal farewell address to the American Army, and of the subsequent organization of the "Washington Headquarters Rocky Hill Association" for the protection and preservation of the property. this Association she presented the building, and which organization, through her, offered the custody of the room in which Washington wrote his farewell address to the American Army to the joint Societies of the Sons of the Revolution and Sons of the American Revolution in the District of Columbia. This trust was accepted by our Society.

February 22. A joint banquet of the Sons of the Revolution and the Sons of the American Revolution was held in the banquet hall of Maison Rauscher, on the corner of Connecticut Avenue and L Street. President Orlando B, Willcox presided, and after the dinner introduced General Joseph C. Breckenridge, who then acted as toast master. The following set toasts were spoken to: "Our Navy." Honorable William Mc-Adoo. Assistant Secretary of the Navy: "Our Societies." Walter S. Logan, of the Empire State Society of the Sons of the American Revolution: "Colonel Walter H. Chase. "Our Patriotic Sires." Other speakers included Judge Willard Bartlett, of Brooklyn, N. Y.: Reverend Doctor Wallace Radcliffe, and the District Attorney, Honorable Henry E. Davis.

March 17. The monthly meeting of the Society was held at 431 Eleventh Street, at which delegates were elected to represent the Society at the National Congress to be held in Cleveland on April 30. The following gentlemen were chosen: Edward M. Gallaudet, Marcus Benjamin, William V. Cox, Frank B. Smith, Thomas M. Vincent, and Noble D. Larner. this meeting Doctor John W. Bayne was appointed to act with a similar representative from the Society of the Sons of the Revolution to serve as a committee to award a handsome gold medal to the boy or girl in regular attendance in the schools of the District of Columbia who should write the most creditable essay upon a topic relating to the history of the war of the Revolution. Doctor Benjamin was appointed a committee to represent the Society in procuring a suitable testimonial to be presented to the Washington Light Infantry. Also a committee of five was appointed to confer with other State Societies for the purpose of raising funds for the erection in Washington of a fire-proof hall of records. A paper entitled "The History of the American Hereditary Patriotic Societies" was then read by Doctor Marcus Benjamin.

April 21. At this meeting it was decided that the annual outing should be made to Marshall Hall and Mount Vernon. It was reported by Doctor Benjamin that the committee appointed for that purpose had decided to present the Washington Light Infantry with a stand of colors in appreciation of the many courtesies extended by that corps to the patriotic societies on public occasions. A report was also received from the committee having in charge the rooms at the Rocky Hill Head-quarters who made an appeal to the Society for donations of relics and furniture for the rooms.

May 17. The Society in company with the Society of the Sons of the Revolution made a joint pilgrimage to Mount Vernon, after which they went to Marshall Hall and partook of a planked shad dinner, at the close of which Vice-President Bayne, who presided, made a short address and introduced in turn the following gentlemen: Honorable Henry M. Baker, Mr. Gaillard Hunt, Honorable H. Clay Evans, General Joseph C. Breckenridge, Professor John C. Gordon, and Mr. Ernest Wilkinson, each of whom made brief remarks. The Society was fortunate on this occasion in having present its honorary member. General Lawrence P. Graham, who is one of the few surviving sons of a Revolutionary sire.

May 25. The members of our Society together with those of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution met in the Armory of the Washington Light Infantry to present to that Command a set of colors. In behalf of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution a brief presentation speech was made by Admiral Greer, and in behalf of our Society an address was made by Vice-President Bayne. Major William G. Moore in a happy speech accepted the colors and gave them into the custody of the standard-bearers of the Light Infantry. At the conclusion of the ceremonies the members of the Societies were entertained by a collation in the officers' quarters.

July 4. A joint celebration of the Societies of the Sons of the Revolution and the Sons of the American Revolution occurred at the Washington Monument. The presiding officer on this occasion was Admiral John G. Walker. President of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution. The exercises included an invocation by the Reverend Doctor Childs, the reading of the Declaration of Independence by Mr. Barry Bulkley, and an address by Honorable Webster Davis. Assistant Secretary of the Interior. The Marine Band played patriotic music at intervals during the exercises, and the Washington Light Infantry escorted the procession to the Monument.

October 5. A special meeting of the Society was held in the red parlor of the Ebbitt House, at which delegates were elected to the adjourned meeting of the Cleveland Congress called in Cincinnati, Ohio, on October 12. Besides the President Doctor Edward M. Gallaudet, Mr. Francis E. Grice, Mr. Michael M. Snoemaker, and Mr. John H. Voorhees were chosen.

November 15. A meeting was held in the Scottish Rite Hall, 1007 G Street, to consider the adoption of the new constitution of the proposed National Society of the American Revolution prepared by a joint committee of the Societies of the Sons of the Revolution and the Sons of the American Revolution, and adopted by the National Society of each organization at their respective Congresses held in Cincinnati, Ohio, on October 12.

December 22. A meeting was held in the Scottish Rite Hall, 1007 G Street, at which a paper entitled "Maryland in the Revolution," written by Mr. Charles Abert, was read, and a sketch of the life of Lyman Hall, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, was read by Mr. Henry O. Hall.

January 19, 1898. A meeting was held in Scottish Rite Hall, 1007 G Street, at which a paper entitled "New Hampshire in the Revolution" was read by Honorable Henry M. Baker.

January 28. A lecture on "George Washington and his Portraits" was delivered under the auspices of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution in the National Rifles' Hall by Miss Elizabeth Bryant Johnston, Historian General of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

February 20. A church service was held under the auspices of the Joint Societies of the Sons of the Revolution and the Sons of the American Revolution in the First Baptist Church at the corner of Sixteenth and O Streets at 3 p. m. President Edward M. Gallaudet acted as chairman. The exercises included an invocation by Chaplain Childs of the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, a soprano solo, "The Holy City," by Mrs. Thomas C. Noyes, a reading of the scriptures by Rev. Charles A. Stakely, pastor of the church, an address by President Edward M. Gallaudet, a tenor solo, "Jesus Lover of my Soul," by Mr. A. G. Nickolds, and an address by the Honorable John Goode. The benediction was pronounced by the pastor of the church. The instrumental music was by the United States Marine Band and the organ of the church.

NECROLOGY

Necrology of the Society

A people which takes no pride in the noble achievements of remote ancestors will never achieve anything worthy to be remembered with pride by remote descendants.

MERCER SLAUGHTER

Commissioner, Southern Passenger Association. Born, Orange County, Va., February 25, 1844. Elected to the Society, December 14, 1892. Died in Richmond, Va., May 10, 1897.

COLONEL SLAUGHTER was the grandson of Philip Slaughter of Culpeper County, Va., whose diary relates how at the age of sixteen he left school and joined the minutemen under Captain John Jameson who were being drilled in "Major Clayton's field." At that time they wore strong brown linen hunting shirts dyed with leaves and on which, worked in large letters on the breast, were the words "Liberty or Death." In their hats were bucktails and a leather strap about their shoulders held a tomahawk and scalping knife, while for arms they carried fowling pieces or squirrel guns. With these men he marched to Williamsburg to release the powder seized by Lord Dunmore. At the close of the expedition his diary laconically adds: "I was sent home to school." A year later he again left school and became a lieutenant in Captain Gabriel Long's company of Riflemen. On December 20, 1776, he was appointed first lieutenant in the 11th Virginia Regiment, and on March 14, 1777, he was made regimental paymaster of the 7th Virginia Regiment. Subsequently he was promoted captainlieutenant and on May 13, 1779, received a full Captain's commission. He served until the close of the war and in his diary recounts numerous pathetic incidents of his experiences, especially those pertaining to his sufferings while in winter-quarters at Valley Forge.

Our compatriot was also descended from William Madison who abandoned his studies in 1778 while a student in Hampden and Sydney College to join the militia. Later he was lieutenant in Dabney's State Legion of Virginia. In 1781 on the invasion of Virginia he volunteered in the militia cavalry and from that service he was appointed a lieutenant in Colonel Harrison's Virginia Regiment of Artillery, with which he was present at the Siege of Yorktown. William Madison's father was chairman of the Orange County, Virginia, Committee of Public Safety.

Compatriot Slaughter was only fifteen years of age when the Civil War began in 1861. He enlisted in the Confederate service and received such rapid promotion that at the close of the war he was in command of a regiment. Although the four years' struggle weakened his constitution and he was a sufferer from severe wounds, he went to work at once with the same courage and determination that had characterized him as a soldier. He became a baggage master on the Virginia Midland R. R. and rose by successive promotions until he was made general passenger agent of the Richmond and Danville R. R., which place he held until 1885. Colonel Slaughter then accepted the place of Commissioner of the first passenger association organized in the south. Two years later when the Southern Passenger Association came into existence he was named one of the commissioners and continued as such until 1895. Failing health then compelled his resignation, and the last years of his life were full of suffering. A stroke of paralysis relieved him of further pain and was the immediate cause of his death. An account of his career published at the time of his death says:

"It is probable that no man had such a complete library of books pertaining to Confederate history; and surely all the south held no man who had half the information about the civil war. He knew the story from Sumter to Appomattox. He knew the battles. He knew the political issues. He knew even the roads and ditches and regiments and commanders. It was marvelous to speak with him. His knowledge of minute details was wonderful; the scope of his judgment on the broad principles involved was none the less so."

Also from the same source is the following extract:

"He had the face of an eagle. His high-bridged, thin nose, his piercing black eyes, that tore all the secrets out of you as they gazed relentlessly from under their heavily shaded caverns; his white, impassive countenance, his raven black hair and flowing beard—they were all the features of a man bespeaking iron will, truthfulness, brain power, and a never-flinching spirit. Such a man was Mercer Slaughter.

OWEN RILEY

Post Office Official. Born, Pultney, N. Y., July 19, 1824. Elected to the Society, July 19, 1890. Died, Pultney, N. Y., June 5, 1897.

MR. RILEY was the grandson of Joseph Stewart of Middlesex County, Connecticut, who enlisted as a private in Captain John Riley's Company in Colonel Benjamin Throop's Connecticut Regiment in January, 1777. A year later he served for a short time in Captain Nehemiah Smith's Company in Colonel John Ely's Regiment. During the summer of 1778 he volunteered for six months and served under General Sullivan when that officer operated against the British then occupying Newport. At this time he was in the battle at Tuckers and Bulls Hill on August 29. In 1780 he joined the 1st Connecticut Line and with that regiment marched to West Point and was present at the execution of Major John André. His final service was in Captain William Richard's Company in the 5th Connecticut Regiment. After the war he removed to Pultney and lived there until his death in 1844.

Compatriot Riley was educated in the district school of Pultney and later studied in the Franklin Academy in Plattsburgh, N. Y. The greater portion of his active life was spent in Washington, and for nearly a quarter of a century he was connected with the Post Office Department. It is said of him that he was so familiar with the postal system that his opinions were accepted as "authority in all things pertaining to it." With advancing years came failing health and he was obliged to withdraw from active duties. He then returned to Pultney where the remaining years of his life were spent. A notice published at the time of his death says:

"He had the courage of his convictions, for they were always thought out with painstaking care, and were never the product of prejudice or the verdict of ex-parte evidence. Still he was not intolerant to the honest convictions of those who did not agree with him. He conceded to others the intellectual rights which he claimed for himself. His thoughtful kindness, his agreeable manner, his genial presence, and his pleasant ways made him a favorite with the hosts of friends who held him in very high esteem."

AUGUSTINE FRANCIS HEWIT

Clergyman, Superior of the Congregation of St. Paul, New York City. Born, Fairfield, Conn., November 27, 1820 - Elected to the Society April 7, 1891. Died in New York City, July 3, 1897.

Compatriot Hewit was a member of our Society in virtue of his descent from James Hillhouse who served with a battery in defense of New Haven when that place was attacked by the British troops under General Tryon in 1779. He also served as an adjutant to the Governor of Connecticut in the raising of troops. The records also show him to have been a captain in the Governor's Foot Guard in 1779. He was a member of the legislature from 1780 to 1783, and was a United States Senator from 1796 till 1810. His father William Hillhouse represented New London in the legislature from 1755 till 1785, and was made an assistant or member of the council. For forty years he was a Judge of the Common Pleas.

Father Hewit was the son of Nathaniel Hewit, a Presbyterian clergyman, who was so earnest a worker in the cause of temperance that he gained the title of "The Luther of the Early Temperance Reform." His mother was the daughter of Senator lames Hillhouse of Connecticut. The son was educated in Phillips Academy and Amherst College, graduating from the latter institution in the class of 1839, which also included among its members the Rev. Richard S. Storrs, the famous divine of Brooklyn, and the Rev. Frederick D. Huntington. Bishop of Central New York. Hewit studied law but abandoned it at the end of a year and began the study of theology. 1842 he was licensed to preach as a Congregationalist but the teachings of that church were not in accordance with his beliefs and in the following year he was ordained a deacon in the Protestant Episcopal Church. In 1843 the famous Tracterian Movement began in Oxford and the resulting agitation that had so important an influence on the brilliant young men then in the English universities was not without its effect on this side of the Atlantic. Mr. Hewit was among the number and in 1846 was received into the Roman Catholic Church. A year later he was ordained by Bishop Reynolds and was appointed vice-principal of the Charleston Collegiate Institute. He joined the Redemptionist Order in 1850 and in 1851 he started on a missionary tour with Father Bernard Hafkenscheid, who had just arrived from Holland with Father C. A. Walworth and Father Isaac T. Hecker, both of whom were Americans and converts to the Roman Catholic Church. Later Father Baker and Father Deshon, also American converts, joined the missionaries, and for seven years these men labored together. At the end of 1857 the four American priests decided to start a new order on a different basis, and Father Hecker was sent to Rome to interview Pope Pius IX. The result was that a decree was issued in March, 1858, creating the Institute of Missionary Priests of St. Paul the Apostle, with Father Hecker as the first Superior of the order. Father Hewit became one of its chief members and then took the religious name of Augustine Francis. In 1865 he gave up missionary work and devoted his entire time to study and writing, becoming one of the leading authorities on church history, theology, and philosophy in this country. On the death of Father Hecker in 1888, he was chosen Superior of the Order. The golden jubilee of his ordination as a Roman Catholic priest was celebrated in March, 1897, with great splendor of ceremony in the Paulist Church in New York City. In 1877 Amherst College gave him the degree of D.D., and later the Pope conferred a similar honor upon him. His published works include: "Reasons for submitting to the Catholic Church" (Charleston, 1846); "Life of Princess Borghese" (New York, 1856); "Life of Dumoulin Borie," an Annamite missionary (1857); "The Little Angel of the Copts;" "Life of Rev. Francis A. Baker" (1865); "Problems of the Age, with studies in St. Augustine on Kindred Subjects" (1868); "Light in Darkness, a Treatise on the Obscure Night of the Soul" (1870); and "The King's Highway, or the Catholic Church the Way of Salvation as, revealed in the Holy Scriptures" (1874). He was a frequent contributor to religious periodicals and edited the "Complete Works of Bishop England" (Baltimore, 1850). Father Hewit was six feet tall and of commanding figure. His features were clean cut and fine, and his hair was as white as snow. He was a man of brilliant mental attainments and as a scholar and controversial writer none stood higher in the Roman Catholic Church.

HENRY WISE GARNETT

Lawyer. Born, Washington, D. C., March 31, 1849. Elected to the Society, July 5, 1890. Died, Clifton Springs, N. Y., July 10, 1897.

MR. GARNETT was a great-grandson of Muscoe Garnett of Essex County, Va., who served as a member of the Essex County Committee of Safety during the War of the Revolution. His mother was a daughter of Governor Henry A. Wise of Virginia, and this relationship made him also a great-grandson of General John Cropper of Bowman's Folly, Accomac County, Va. General Cropper was exceedingly active in the War of the Revolution. He was made captain in the 9th Regiment of Virginia Regulars in 1776, and a year later he was promoted to major in the 7th Virginia Regiment, being present in that capacity in the battles of Brandywine and Germantown. On October 27, 1777, he was made lieutenant-colonel and was at the battle of Monmouth. He resigned in 1779 but soon entered the service again and was in command of the 11th Virginia Regiment during the trials of the winter season at Valley Forge. Later he became colonel of the militia of Accomac County and was wounded at the battle of the Barges on November 28, 1782. General Cropper was an original member of the Society of the Cincinnati and president of the Virginia Society. His father, Sebastian Cropper, was a captain in the Virginia Militia in 1775 and died in 1776.

Our compatriot was a son of Doctor Alexander Yelverton Peyton Garnett, a well known physician of Washington, and was educated as a lawyer, studying under Richard T. Merrick. He was admitted to practice early in the seventies and continued active in his chosen profession until his death. At a meeting of the members of the District bar held shortly after his death to do honor to his memory the following sentiments were expressed:

"In our opinion the pre-eminent example of Henry Wise Garnett's life was its large, brave and honorable activity. Coming to the bar at an early age, he soon gave evidence that he understood the full measure of responsibility which professional life demands.

* * * * * *

He never failed in the discharge of those duties. Professionally, he was always equal to any demand that was made upon him. In ability, among the first; in courage, never failing; in restless activity, unceasing; he was the embodiment of those qualities which are at once the requirement and the honorable characteristic of the advocate."

Mr. Garnett was a member of the Board of Management of our Society in 1891 and again in 1893. In the councils of our Society the value of his judgment was recognized and his opinion was frequently sought on matters of importance.

CYRUS CULBERTSON MACLAY

Merchant. Born, Westmoreland County, Pa., September 7, 1842. Elected to the Society, July 27, 1895. Died, Tipton, Mo., August 8, 1897.

Compatriot Maclay was the great-grandson of John Maclay of Cumberland County, Pa., who was a delegate to the Provincial Congress that met in Carpenter's Hall in Philadelphia during June of 1776, and he was one of those who at that time voted in favor of independence. His brother William Maclay was also a member of that Congress and subsequently became one of the first Senators from Pennsylvania. Contemporary accounts credit William Maclay with having been active in the formation of the Democratic party prior to the return of Thomas Jefferson from France.

Mr. Maclay was born in Jones Mills, Pennsylvania, and was one of nine children. At the age of twelve he accompanied his parents to St. Louis, Mo. His first employment was that of water-boy on the Missouri Pacific Railway which in those days only went as far as Kirkwood. He then became a newsboy and was the first person to sell newspapers on a train west of the Mississippi River. At that time papers were folded by hand and each boy was required to fold his own supply. Mr. Maclay was gradually promoted in the service of the company and was the first express messenger and baggage master to run into Sedalia. In 1863 he moved to Tipton, Mo., then an insignificant railway station, and became associated in business with his maternal uncle Mr. John H. Gleim. later with his brother James he bought out the interest of his uncle and the firm became J. B. and C. C. Maclay. In 1872 on the death of the senior member the style became Maclay & Co. with Mr. C. C. Maclay as the principal member, and in 1893 he became the entire owner of the business. was active in other matters, and in 1880 was made vice-president of the Bank of Tipton, of which institution he became president in 1891. He was a member of the Central Missouri District Fair Association and of the Tipton Board of Trade.

CHARLES ABERT

Lawyer. Born, Mount Holly, N. J., September 19, 1822. Elected to the Society, June 16, 1890. Died near Rockville, Md., August 10, 1897.

MR. ABERT was the great-grandson of Timothy Matlack of Pennsylvania. This famous "fighting Quaker" was a member of the Committee of Safety, and a Colonel in the Militia. In 1776 he was a Deputy to the Pennsylvania Conference, and from 1780 to 1787 he was a delegate to the Continental Congress; also serving as Secretary of Council of State and Master of Rolls in 1781.

Compatriot Abert was the son of Colonel John James Abert, a distinguished Engineer Officer, who settled in Washington with his family in 1829. His early education was received in Washington, after which he entered Princeton University where he was graduated with the class of 1842. He then began the study of law with Mr. Richard S. Coxe, but he had scarcely entered on the practice of his profession when he was invited to become the private secretary of the Honorable Robert J. Walker, Secretary of the Treasury. This place he held for four years, after which he resumed his profession in association with Mr. John O. Sargeant. Mr. Abert was successful in winning the esteem of his fellow citizens, and for a number of years he served the District of Columbia as President of its Common Council. His failing health led him in 1861 to move to Montgomery County, Md., and at Norbeck he made a home for himself in which he continued to live until his death. he resumed the practice of his profession and continued actively in it until the close of his life. He was a School Commissioner of Montgomery County, a director of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, and a director in the Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Montgomery County. Mr. Abert was active in the councils of the Episcopal Church for many years, of which denomination he was a prominent member, serving as a lay reader for many years, and as a delegate to various church He enjoyed serving the Church more than the conventions. State, and declined political preferment on more than one occasion. He led a quiet, simple life and had the love, respect, and admiration of all those with whom he was associated. In 1845 Mr. Abert married H. Constantia Bache, the great-grand-daughter of Benjamin Franklin.

ROGER SHERMAN

Lawyer, Born, Randolph, Tipton County, Tenn., July 28, 1839. Died, New York City, September 19, 1807.

MR. SHERMAN was a great-grandson of James Sherman of Brimfield. Mass., who participated in the battle of Lexington as captain of a company in Colonel Pynchon's regiment. Subsequently he was commissioned captain in Colonel Ebenezer Learned's regiment. His son, James Sherman, Jr., served as a private under his father at Lexington and in 1779 was made a corporal in Captain Joshua Shaw's company in Colonel Elisha Porter's regiment of Massachusetts troops.

Our compatriot was a son of Dr. Isaac DeBiois Sherman, who practiced medicine in Syracuse, N. Y., and also edited in that place the Argus. His mother was a daughter of Judge Alfred Conkling of Utica, N. Y. In 1835 the family settled in Randolph. Tenn., and there the son was born. He received a common school education, and as a young man served with a party that surveyed the line of the Burlington and Missouri River R. R. In 1857 he began the study of law in Arkansas , whither his parents had removed' and in 1860 was admitted to the bar. Although opposed to slavery, he served in the Confederate army until he became convinced of the hopelessness of the cause and then he settled in Erie. Pa. In 1867 he removed to Pithole city and in 1870 settled permanently in Titusville. Pa. In the meantime he had been admitted to the Pennsylvania bar and thereafter until his death followed his chosen profession in the last named city, acquiring the reputation of being the "best equity lawver" in northwestern Pennsylvania. He was the founder in 1885 of the American Civizen, a journal which he edited for four years.

JOHN LORIMER WORDEN,
Rear-Admiral United States Navy.
Vice-President District of Columbia Society
SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION,

Mr. Sherman was a manly man, a true man. He was faithful to his engagements whether of a business, social or personal nature. As a citizen he will be greatly missed. He was always ready to discharge his share of obligation to the community and co-operate in all needful measures for their common interests.

JOHN LORIMER WORDEN

Rear Admiral, U. S. Navy, Retired. Born, Sing Sing, N. Y., March 12, 1818. Elected to the Society, June 16, 1890. Died, Washington, D. C., October 18, 1897.

ADMIRAL WORDEN was a grandson of Doctor Isaac Gilbert Graham of Westchester County, N. Y., who entered the service as surgeon's mate in the 7th Regiment of the Massachusetts Continental Line and later was made an assistant surgeon in the Continental Army. He was with Washington at West Point and when he retired from the army at the close of the war, he received from his superior officers the highest proofs of their respect and esteem. His descendants still cherish a silver-headed cane presented to him by Washington himself as a token of his appreciation of the services rendered by Doctor Graham. His father, Doctor Andrew Graham of Woodbury, Conn., was a member of the Connecticut Committee of Safety and on the beginning of hostilities became regimental surgeon of the Connecticut troops. He was captured at the battle of White Plains and was imprisoned in the Dutch Church on Nassau Street in New York City until the surrender of Cornwallis.

Compatriot Worden entered the U. S. Navy as a midshipman on January 10, 1834, being then only fifteen years of age. Six years later he attended the Naval School, then in Philadelphia, and on July 16, 1840, was advanced to the grade of passed midshipman. He was promoted lieutenant on November 30, 1846, and thereafter until the beginning of the Civil War served on various ships and at the U. S. Naval Observatory. In consequence of his long experience in the Navy and his knowledge of the necessities that would be confronted in time of war, he was ordered to Washington on April 6, 1861, and assigned to special duty connected with the discipline and efficiency of the naval service. Office work was not congenial to him, and he promptly asked for duty affoat. His request was granted and he was sent the following day (April 7) at daybreak to Pensacola with dispatches for the commanding officer off that port, ordering him to reinforce Fort Pickens. A heavy gale was blowing on his arrival and he was prevented from communicating with the squadron, although he spent the entire day in a small boat and narrowly escaped losing his life several times. On the next day (April 12) he succeeded in delivering his messages, and in consequence Fort Pickens was saved for the Union. Lieutenant Worden started for Washington by an overland route, but was arrested near Montgomery, Ala., and held as a prisoner of war until November 14, 1861. He was then exchanged and ordered on November 20, 1861, to the naval rendezvous in New York City, where he was assigned to the superintendence of the completion of John Ericsson's Monitor. When the new iron clad was finished Lieutenant Worden was given command of her and he was ordered to Hampton Roads. where the Confederate ram Merrimac had sunk the Congress and Cumberland. On March 9, 1862, occurred the famous naval duel between the two iron clads, resulting in the withdrawal of the Merrimac. The avowed purpose of the Confederate ram to destroy the National fleet and to capture Washington, New York, and other cities was checked, and honors without stint were bestowed on the successful commander. Congress gave him special votes of thanks, and he was advanced to the rank of commander on July 12, 1862. He was again promoted and received his commission as Captain on February 3, 1863. During the first half of the year 1863 he commanded the monitor Montauk in the South Atlantic Squadron, and at that time captured the Confederate Privateer Nashville, he also participated in the attack on the forts in Charleston harbor on April 7, 1863. From 1863 till 1866 he was in New York engaged in superintending the construction of iron clads. After the war he commanded the Pensacola in the Pacific Squadron, and was superintendent of the U. S. Naval Academy. He received his commission as rear-admiral on November 20, 1872, and was commander-inchief of the European Squadron from February 3, 1875, till December 23, 1877. Thereafter until his retirement on December 23, 1886, he held shore appointments, chiefly in Washington, where his home was. Subsequently he lived quietly in the Capital City until he was stricken with pneumonia, resulting from a cold, which caused his death.

Admiral Worden was the second on our list of members, his name following that of Admiral Porter, and he was a vice-president in 1891 and again in 1892. The records of the Society further show that he was made an honorary member on April 20, 1891.

GEORGE DOOLITTLE

Clerk, Auditor's Office, Treasury Department. Born, Utica, N. Y., December 26, 1830. Elected to the Society, February 16, 1891. Died, Washington, D. C., October 24, 1897.

Compatriot Doolittle was a grandson of George Doolittle of Middletown, Conn., who in 1776, at the age of seventeen, enlisted as a private in Captain Joseph Churchill's Company in the Third Battalion of Wadsworth's Brigade. A year later he enlisted in Lieutenant David Smith's Company in Wolcott's Brigade. Subsequently he served in the Sixth Connecticut Regiment, becoming Corporal on October 1, 1780. His record further shows him to have been sergeant in the Fourth Connecticut in 1781, and finally he was given a similar rank in the Sixth Connecticut Regiment on July 1, 1781. He received a pension. Mr. Doolittle's maternal grandfather was Jabez Clark of Lebanon, Conn., who served through the war, first as ensign and then as captain, in James Dana's company in Colonel John Ely's Regiment of Connecticut troops, and was pensioned.

Mr. Doolittle received his early education in Utica and then entered Hamilton College. After graduating at this institution he studied law and was admitted to the bar in Oneida County.

For some years he followed his chosen profession in Iowa, but the Civil War so interrupted his practice that he accepted an appointment in the Treasury Department in Washington, where for many years he was entrusted with the settlement of the claims made by steamboats against the Government. He continued with the Treasury Department, and at the time of his death was Chief of Division in the office of the Auditor for the War Department. Our compatriot was a Unitarian in religion and devoted to the church of that faith in Washington. A member of the family writes: "His life was blameless, spent in devotion to duty and in the most unselfish and loving fulfillment of all the obligations it brought him. Few have been so tenderly loved and so sincerely mourned."

WILLIAM HARRISON LOWDERMILK

Publisher and Bookseller. Born, Cumberland, Md., January 7, 1839. Elected to the Society, July 27, 1895. Died, Washington, D. C., December 29, 1897.

MR. LOWDERMILK was a great-grandson of Michael Hershner, of Fort Cumberland, Maryland, who served as a private in Captain Philip Grayble's company, in Colonel Honsaker's Maryland Regiment, during the Revolution, and was discharged from service in 1799.

Our compatriot was himself a native of Cumberland, but at the age of eleven he moved to Louisville, Kentucky, where he was educated, and where later he learned the trade of printing. He enlisted in a Kentucky regiment at the beginning of the Civil War, and was soon promoted to staff duty, serving under General William B. Hazen. He took part in the battle of Shiloh; and at the battle of Stone River he was captured by the Confederates and confined for eight months in Libby Prison, at the expiration of which time, being exchanged, he rejoined his command. Thereafter until the close of the war he continued in active service, participating in the battle of Chickamauga and other important engagements. At the close of the war he returned to his home in Cumberland, and was made postmaster of that place by President Grant, holding the office for eight years. During these years he conducted The Civilian, a weekly newspaper published in the interest of the Republican party, and also The Transcript, the first daily newspaper in Western Maryland, which he published in Cumberland. He also wrote "The History of Cumberland" (Washington, 1878) which is highly regarded, not only because of the local history which it gives, but also as being a complete narrative of Washington's first campaign and the Braddock expedition. In 1878 Mr. Lowdermilk came to Washington and entered the book business in association with lames Anglim, but later in copartnership with John T. Loomis he organized the firm of W. H. Lowdermilk & Company, which firm soon became the possessors of one of the largest bookstores in this country. Mr. Lowdermilk was also a member of the Society of the Sons of the Revolution in the District of Columbia and served as its Registrar in 1893-5.

ALBERT CARHART

Merchant. Born, Bound Brook, N. J., September 10, 1841. Elected to the Society, April 7, 1891.

Died, Washington, D. C., December 30, 1897.

MR. CARHART was a great-grandson of Cornelius Carhart of New Jersey, who served in the war of the Revolution as captain in the 2d Regiment of the Hunterdon Militia and later as major in the 3d Regiment of that Militia.

Our compatriot left his birthplace in 1849, and moved with his parents to Zion, Cecil County, Md. He was educated in Media, Pa., where he studied under a private tutor. Later he settled in Oxford, Chester County, Pa., where for twenty years he was a member of the firm of Carhart Brothers, dry goods merchants. During these years he was an officer in the State Militia and a member of the Town Council. In 1887 he removed to Washington, and became a member of the firm of Carhart & Leidy. He was regarded as one of Washington's most progressive and respected merchants.

APPENDIX

WASHINGTON'S HEADQUARTERS AT ROCKY HILL, NEW JERSEY.*

JUST a little over a year ago the repairing was begun on the Berrian house, Rocky Hill, the home from 1734 of Judge John Berrian, who was appointed third Judge of the State of New Jersey, and died in 1761, his widow remaining there for several years longer, entertaining many notable persons. History tells us this home was the headquarters of Gen. George Washington in 1783.

The building is situated on an elevation of 200 feet. The house as shown in the picture has the balcony (which was torn away forty years ago, but was restored to its original design) facing south. The chimney in the center of the building is another feature of 150 years ago. The flagstaff, with gilt ball and storm flag, may be seen for many miles across the country. From the west end of the balcony a beautiful expanse of fertile country, twenty miles in extent, is viewed. Eight miles away is the historic Hopewell Valley, where the council of war was held that memorable June night before the battle of Monmouth, and Hopewell, the home of John Hart, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Somerville, twelve miles distant at the foot of the Watchung Mountains, is the county seat.

It having in command such an expanse of country, Gen. Washington retired to the Berrian house on several occasions, either before or after a battle. After the battle of Princeton, Gen. Washington turned off the New Brunswick road and found his rest at the Berrian house before his long march to Morristown, which is twenty miles north of Somerville, on his way from Lambertville to Monmouth, during which battle Judge Berrian's son was Washington's aid.

^{*}This article is from the Illustrated Magazine of the New York Times of February 20, 1898, to which source, credit is also due for the courtesy of the accompanying illustrations.

We need not wonder why Gen. Washington chose the Berrian house as his headquarters in the autumn of 1783, as at that time Princeton, only four miles away, was the seat of Congress, and the homes of Richard Stockton. Clark, and Witherspoon, signers of the Declaration, being occupied, the next suitable place was the Judge's old home at Rocky Hill. To this house Mrs. Washington came, entertaining all the notable persons visiting this country. The Washingtons occupied the place from August 24 until November 9, 1783. Portraits of Gen. and Mrs. Washington were painted by Joseph Wright while they were at Rocky Hill. Gen. Washington's portrait was sent to France.

Fearing that this noted building might go to decay, in the autumn of 1896 an association was formed of 130 members to restore the Berrian house, which was purchased and given to the association. In one year the building was repaired, painted white with green shutters, and an escutcheon placed on the north side of the house bearing the name "Washington's Headquarters."

The parlor, or Princeton room, furnished by the Princeton Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of which there are two views, shows the homespun carpet, spinning-wheel, rush chair, spinnet, sampler of the Seventeen Hundreds, the cabinet containing many old pewter pieces, also china of over 100 years ago, the goblet being one of Thomas Jefferson's, with Monticello engraved on one side. The furniture is of the black horsehair variety.

Opening into this room is the old-fashioned bedroom, with canopy bed and other antique pieces of furniture. Adjoining this room on the north side of the house is the Trenton room, furnished by ladies of the chapter in Trenton. Across a hall is the registration room, on the walls of which hang many interesting papers and maps. The dining room has been furnished by ladies of Trenton. The turned stairway lands one at the entrance of the Washington room, in which Washington wrote his Farewell Address. The custody of this historic room and its furnishings have been assigned to the Societies of the Sons of the American Revolution and Sons of the Revolution of Washington, D. C. From this room one enters Washington's bedroom, in which is a fine old high post mahogany bedstead, brought from the headquarters of Cornwallis, in Brooklyn, and in which Gen. Washington slept. Chairs and dainty pieces of furniture make the room homelike. From this one may pass into the curio room, where hang pictures of Washington, Lafayette, and other Generals, a sword of Cornwallis's, pieces of Mrs. Washington's dresses, an old-fashioned wine chest, and many more relics of interest.

A long hall through the house divides this room from the artist's room, and to the southwest is the Josephine room, with old cherry bedstead, with dainty hangings ninety years old used in the same room at the time when Judge Crozier occupied the house; a mirror 125 years old; warming pan, and a number of pictures; a copy of The New London Courant, published December 5, 1783, in which is the Farewell Address of Gen. Washington.

The flag which floats every day, a gift from the school children of the neighboring villages, waves a welcome to all visitors.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE APPOINTED TO ATTEND TO THE FURNISHING OF THE ROOM IN THE WASHINGTON HEAD-QUARTERS, ROCKY HILL, NEW JERSEY, PLACED AT THE DISPOSAL OF THE JOINT SOCIETIES OF THE SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION AND SONS OF THE REVOLUTION IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Your Committee beg to report that in the year that has elapsed since they were appointed to the care of the room so courteously placed at the disposal of the two societies by the Rocky Hill Washington Headquarters Association, they have succeeded in securing a number of valuable and interesting contributions for the furnishing of the historic room. In order to create an interest in this work a circular was issued on January 6, 1808, copies of which were sent to every member of both of the Societies, and it is with tegret that we have to announce that the responses have been very few. Most of the articles secured have been gifts obtained through the individual influence of your Committee. At a meeting of our Society held on December 22, an appropriation of $50 was granted, most of which has been expended in the framing of the valuable historic portraits that have been obtained.

Through the courtesy of Mrs. Rosa Wright Smith the refusal was secured of a table once owned by George Mason, of Gunston Hall, which relic thoroughly authenticated we are desirous of securing, and for that purpose we would respectfully request of the Society an additional appropriation.

In conclusion, your Committee can only repeat the appeal that they have already made on several occasions to you, namely, that they desire donations of material suitable for use in furnishing the room in the Rocky Hill Washington Headquarters, in which Washington wrote his farewell address to the American Army.

Appended to this report is a copy of the circular issued on January 6, and a list of the articles received to date, together with a financial statement showing the expenditures that have been made by your Committee.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ORIANDO B. WILLCOX. WILLIAM J. RHEES. MARCIS BENIAMIN.

FESS, 485 22, 1808,

^{*} Subsequently this table was pullchased by the Society and is now in the room.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA SOCIETY SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION

WASHINGTON CITY, January 6, 1898.

The Societies of the Sons of the American Revolution and the Sons of the Revolution in the District of Columbia have accepted as a sacred trust from the Rocky Hill Headquarters Association, Princeton, N. J., the custody of the room in which General Washington wrote his farewell address to those brave heroes who fought and bled for the cause of American Freedom.

In order that the room so kindly placed at the disposal of the patriotic societies of this District may be suitably furnished, a committee has been appointed by the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution to take active measures toward securing the necessary articles.

To accomplish this purpose you are earnestly solicited to loan or give any thing curious of Colonial, Historic, or Military interest, that you can spare from your own keeping—especially such as would be suitable to furnish, or to preserve in an office library of so much interest to every American citizen. Articles that can be used to adorn the walls or cases, such as pictures, maps, books, manuscripts or prints, swords, muskets or other ordnance, and the like, would be acceptable, as well as interesting to all posterity.

All contributions or notifications of same should be sent to General O. B. Willcox, 2022 R Street, Washington, D. C., who will promptly acknowledge and forward them, and when placed at the Headquarters each one will be properly credited to the donor.

ORLANDO B. WILLCOX.
WILLIAM J. RHEES.
MARCUS BENJAMIN.

INFORMATION RELATIVE TO MEMBERSHIP IN THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA SOCIETY, SONS OF THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION.

Constitution of the Society. ARTICLE III.—SECTION I. Any man shall be eligible to membership who, being of the age of twenty-one years or over and a citizen of good repute in the community, is the lineal descendant of an ancestor who was at all times unfailing in his loyalty to and rendered actual service in the cause of American Independence, either as an officer, soldier, seaman, marine, militiaman or minute-man, in the armed forces of the Continental Congress or of any one of the several Colonies or States; or as a signer of the Declaration of Independence; or as a member of a Committee of Safety or Correspondence; or as a member of any Continental, Provincial or Colonial Congress or Legislature; or as a civil officer, either of one of the Colonies or States or of the National Government; or as a recognized patriot who performed actual service by overt acts of resistance to the authority of Great Britain.

He may be elected a member of this Society, provided that, upon due investigation, he shall be found to be acceptable.

SEC. II. Applications for membership shall be made in duplicate, upon blank forms prescribed by the General Board of Managers of the National Society, and shall in each case set forth the name, occupation and residence of the applicant, his line of descent, and the name, residence and services of his ancestor or ancestors in the Revolution from whom he derives eligibility.

The applicant shall make oath that the statements of his application are true, according to the best of his knowledge and belief, and his application shall be endorsed by two members of the Society, accompanied by a letter from at least one compatriot, and subject to such other requirements as may be prescribed by the rules or by-laws of the Society.

SEC. III. Sons of Revolutionary soldiers who are regularly accepted by the Board of Management, upon the recommendation of the proper committees, may be made Honorary members of the Society without payment of dues.

SEC. IV. Any Senator or Representative, or officer in the civil, military or naval service of the United States, officially residing in Washington, or any officer in the Diplomatic service of the Government of the United States, who is a member in good standing of a State Society of Sons of the American Revolution, may be elected to associate membership in this Society.

Members of State Societies of Sons of the American Revolution, while residing in the District of Columbia and upon election by the Board of Management, may be enrolled as Associate members of this Society.

ARTICLE V.—Section 1. The initiation fee shall be five ($5) dollars; the annual dues three ($3) dollars; or the payment at one time of fifty ($50) dollars shall constitute a life member with exemption from payment of dues thereafter.

Members of the "Sons of the Revolution" who join this Society will be exempt from the payment of an initiation fee, provided they are eligible and acceptable under the Constitution of this Society.

When a member is elected after the annual meeting his dues for the remainder of that year shall be at the rate of twentyfive cents per month.

Sec. II. The annual dues shall be payable in advance on the twenty-second day of February in each year.

By-Laws.—Section I.—Any applicant for admission to this Society shall file with the Registrar his application as prescribed in the Constitution, together with such documents and other proofs of qualification as he may have, and the initiation fee ($5.00); also a letter from the member proposing the name stating his knowledge of the applicant. These papers shall be referred to the Committee on Eligibility. If found eligible the papers shall be referred to the Committee on Acceptability. The Board may then elect him as a member of the Society or otherwise dispose of his application, and if his eligibility is approved by the Board and by the Registrar-General of the National Society he shall be entitled to all the privileges of a compatriot therein. If for any reason he is not approved as a member, his papers and initiation fee shall be returned.

Section VII.

- 6. The Eligibility Committee, consisting of three members, shall, after careful scrutiny of the record of each applicant for membership, endorse their conclusions upon the application papers and transmit the papers to the Committee on Acceptability.
- 7. The Acceptability Committee, consisting of three members, shall, after due inquiry into the character and standing of each applicant, endorse their recommendations upon the application papers, and transmit the papers to the Secretary for the action of the Board.

Committee on Bligibility.

W. J. Rhees, I. W. Dennison, P. Beckwith.

Committee on Acceptability.

W. A. DeCaindry, N. D. Larner, A. K. Parris.

Application blanks will be furnished by the Registrar, Mr. William J. Rhees. Smithsonian Institution, to whom, when completed in duplicate, they should be returned.

In filling out the blanks full names are to be given and no initials are to be used.

In stating the line of descent the maiden name of mother, grandmothers, etc., are always to be given.

Certificates of Membership may be obtained from the National Society upon application to the Registrar, by the payment of $1.25.

The Badge or Insignia of the Order is sterling silver covered with gold, is sold by Tiffany & Co., New York City, for $9.00, upon permits issued by the Registrar General, through the Registrar of the District of Columbia Society.

Rosettes are furnished at 25 cents each by the Corresponding Secretary, F. B. Smith; Registrar, W. J. Rhees; or Treasurer, H. P. R. Holt.
